What is StressLess?

Our feed additive equine supplement is a casein protein based product that has a calming and focusing effect on horses of all ages and in all types of situations. Casein is the protein derived from cow's milk that has been found to have a calming, anxiety relieving reaction in many animal species including horses, dogs, cats, and even humans.

The casein is isolated without the use of chemicals through an all-natural process called an enzymatic reaction, similar to the way cottage cheese curds are derived from milk. Ingesting it has shown to calm the equine brain and decrease stress reactions such as agitation and over-excitability.

We believe it is the best “hot horse” remedy you will find.

StressLess increases receptivity to training and behavior modification and ultimately decreases poor performance. It is safe for long or short term use, has no side effects (no drowsiness or impaired motor function), and it will absolutely not affect the brilliance of your horse. Our horse supplement has a palatable apple flavor and it is show safe, non-addictive, and herbal free. It does not contain lactose or preservatives.

This miracle for equine mental health was first conceived by a group of research veterinarians, trainers, pharmaceutical executives, and horse owners. They collaborated to develop a calming product that was safe, natural, effective, and easy to administer. StressLess has been refined over time and is now the best product on the market to promote calmness in horses naturally.

What are the benefits of StressLess?

This equine supplement encourages calm and focus but does not affect the motor skills or energy level of your horse. You will notice a more willing and balanced temperament with no drowsiness or impaired performance in the ring or on the trail. The best part of our calming, mood-balancing formula is the decrease in stress, which equals a happier horse and rider.

StressLess may improve a trainer's success by increasing the horse's reception to behavior modification while promoting focus during training and schooling. Nervousness in your horse may be reduced, especially in important situations like showing, traveling, medical procedures, prolonged stall rest, moving, adoption, meeting new animals/people, and day to day training.

Limiting stress is one of the best ways to prevent equine gastric ulcers, according to an academic study published by Dr. Beth Davis at Kansas State University. Sadly, 90% of racehorses and 60% of show horses are affected by ulcers, so we think the use of StressLess Horse Supplement can be a great way to promote calm, which leads to good equine health. Consider StressLess if you are dealing with:

Agitation
Nervousness
Overreaction
Low Appetite
Inconsistency
Poor Performance
Anxiety
Fear

We highly recommend our product when children become involved in the wonderful, exciting world of horses. Every parent wants two things for their child when beginning as an equestrian: that the child is safe and that they are having a good time. StressLess contributes to an experience around horses that is fun, successful, and enjoyable. The same holds true for the adult amateur rider as well!

How do I use StressLess?

We recommend that you start your horse at four scoops a day for two weeks, fed with grain as a daily supplement. After two weeks you may be able to modify that level down according to the “hotness” and lack of focus of your horse. Most trainers and owners are usually able to gauge where they stand with the horse’s stress reactions after those two weeks.

We do not recommend going below two scoops a day, especially if you have an upcoming stressful event. In that case, you can ramp the dosage back up at least 5 days prior to the event. Your horse may train quietly at home on a regular two scoop schedule and for shows increase the dose to four scoops about five days before. Here at Centerline Distribution, we put all of our horses on six scoops of StressLess a day during Hurricane Ian and they were perfectly quiet in their stalls during the intense wind and rain. Testing has shown that 75% of horses respond to StressLess and typically they respond within five days to two weeks. We recommend you use for one month before judging your horse’s response.

StressLess comes in 8.82 oz cans which will provide for approximately 2 to 2.5 months of supplementation. It is safe for short or long term use and there are no side effects to increasing or decreasing dosage as needed.

Please keep our product in a cool dry environment.
